Our Students

Publicolor selects students who evidence key indicators for being at high risk of not completing school. Students may have behavioral challenges, chronic absences, grade repetitions, learning disabilities, or are failing core subjects like math and English. Other indicators that are obstacles to success are also present:

95% are eligible for free lunch due to low family income

79% are first-generation citizens

85% experience food insecurity during the year

67% speak a non-English language at home

48% reside in a single-parent household

Publicolor Students Overcome the Odds

100% graduate high school on-time compared to 86% of their peers

100% of Publicolor graduates went on to college or post-secondary accreditation vs. 60% of their school peers.

100% first-year college retention rate vs. 61% of their peers

76% complete their college degree within 6 years compared to 11% of students from high-poverty households 62.2% nationwide.

The Return on your Investment

Every dollar donated yields a return on investment of at least $39, based on the new earning power as a college graduate. This does not include the savings to society had they dropped out of school.

Publicolor's Impact

Publicolor has transformed 344 struggling schools and 258 neglected community sites (health clinics, food pantries, shelters, community + senior centers, police precincts). These transformations have impacted 2.2 million people. We are proud to have twice been recognized at the White House: first in 2000 to accept the President's Service Award for our work with volunteers and the community, and again in 2014 to receive the National Arts + Humanities Award for creative youth programming.

Programs

Paint Club

The transformation begins

Our gateway after-school program hosted in the city's most struggling schools. For 10 weeks, the schools' most disengaged students paint all the public spaces in their schools and learn the marketable skill of commercial painting. The vibrant and energizing colors transform their once institutional-looking schools into welcoming learning environments. Principals cherish the new sense of community and safety, along with the culture of determination Paint Clubs create. Participants are themselves transformed as they work with our caring staff, and learn strong and transferable work habits.

COLOR Club (Community of Leaders Organizing Revitalization)

Building a foundation for success

Our 3-day-a-week, multi-year after-school program for at-risk Paint Club graduates in 7th, 8th and 9th grades that prepares the students for success in high school. COLOR Club offers academic supports and career exposure and life-skills workshops designed to help students plan and prepare for a rewarding future. On Saturdays, students continue to develop their work-readiness and leadership skills as they paint alongside corporate volunteers at Paint Club sites and underserved community facilities.

Next Steps

Preparing for college + career

Our apprenticeship program for at-risk students in the 10th, 11th, and 12th grades that follows the 3-day/week, multi-year COLOR Club model. Next Steps offers innovative workshops designed to help participants develop a clear understanding of personal career goals and what it takes to realize them, while also building leadership and work-readiness skills, career exploration, and preparing for success in college or a trade. Next Steps offers weekly academic supports, intensive SAT prep sessions both during the year and over the summer, and hosts 2 multi-day, multi-campus college tours per year. High school seniors and college freshmen are paired with mentors who are successful professionals in the students' desired careers.

Summer Design Studio (SDS)

Combating summer learning loss

Our 7-week college-level summer enrichment and project-based learning program is an effective antidote to summer learning loss. Morning classes are held at Pratt Institute where students are immersed in literacy and math through the scaffold of product design. Publicolor emphasizes the use of design for social change. All students also learn the fundamentals of the Adobe Creative Suite (Photoshop, Illustrator, InDesign) and all learn the basics of 3D printing. SDS also offers participants crucial summer employment. Afternoons are dedicated to painting under-resourced but vital community facilities including city-run homeless shelters, day-care centers, as well as schools. Each Publicolor student devotes 300 hours a year to community service. There's no program in the country like it!

Fresh Coat

Internship program

Our semi-professional painting crew, comprised of seasoned apprentices selected for their demonstrated leadership and work-readiness skills, teaches the students entrepreneurial skills needed to run their own painting business that can help defray college expenses. These accomplished painters are paid hourly wages and touch up previously Publicolored schools and community sites, thereby extending the power of our transformations for thousands more to experience.

Scholarship

Making college possible

Graduating high school seniors are paired with mentors and awarded a 5-year gap scholarship to support their success in college or a post-secondary accreditation program. Providing a pathway to their chosen career ensures that Publicolor students break out of the cycle of poverty and into the middle class.

What the Research Says

The Impact of Color on Learning

by Kathie Engelbrecht, Assoc. IIDA.

“When color is transmitted through the human eye, the brain releases a hormone which affects our moods, mental clarity and energy level.”

“Color’s demonstrated effectiveness on improving student’s attention span as well as both student and teacher’s sense of time, is a further reason as to how color can increase the productivity in a classroom. The mental stimulation passively received by the color in a room, helps the student and teacher stay focused on the task at hand.”

“Humans were also found to turn inward in monotone environments, which may induce feelings of anxiety, fear and distress resulting from under stimulation. This lack of stimulation further creates a sense of restlessness, excessive emotional response, difficulty in concentration and irritation.”

“Color can create a system of order and help to distinguish important and unimportant elements in the environment.”

“Businesses have credited the use of functional color with a decrease in worker absenteeism, an improved quality of work and an increase in productivity. Color psychologists have linked color with brain development and the human transition from child to adult.”

The Impact of Light and Colour on Psychological Mood: a Cross-Cultural Study of Indoor Work Environments

by Kuller, Mikellides, & Janssens

“One practical implication is that a moderate use of good color design will serve to improve the overall mood and well-being of people.”

“Light and color should be treated as part of a more complex system making up the totality of a healthy building.”

International Association of Color Consultants – North America (IACC-NA)

“A school’s physical environment has a powerful psycho-physiological impact on its students. Appropriate color design is important in protecting eyesight, in creating surroundings that are conducive to studying, and in promoting physical and mental health.’ ...premature fatigue, lack of interest and behavioral problems can be attributed directly to incorrect environmental conditions involving poorly planned color and lighting.”

“Brightly colored corridors encourage people to move from place to place.”

Color is an Optimum Learning Environment

by Dr. Willard R. Daggett. International Center for Leadership in Education

“Color is an important factor in the physical learning environment and is a major element in interior design that impacts student achievement, as well as teacher effectiveness and staff efficiency. Research has demonstrated that specific colors and patterns directly influence the health, morale, emotions, behavior, and performance of learners.”

“Color in the learning environment provides an unthreatening environment that improves visual processing, reduces stress, and challenges brain development through visual stimulation /relationships and patterns seeking. Visual stimulation actually rewires the brain, making stronger connections while fostering visual thinking, problem solving, and creativity. Color variety reduces boredom and passivity.”

“Color improves attention span by avoiding a monotonous environment and helping the student stay focused through mental stimulation, thereby increasing productivity and accuracy. Eyestrain, contrast, glare, minimal distraction, degree of stimulation and degree of concentration are impacted directly by color. Color can alter perception of time, increase school pride, reduce disruptive behavior and aggression, reduce vandalism, reduce absenteeism, and provide a supportive background for the activities being performed.”

Learning, Lighting, and Color

by Randall Fielding

“Research shows that learning benefits from a stimulus-rich environment, which is not supported by a palette that is dominated by gray, beige, white or off-white; this applies to both building interiors and exteriors. There is rarely a good reason to take a neutral approach with educational architecture.”

Publicolor Community Museum

This is Publicolor's new paradigm for a museum. Visual beauty is food for soul. We recognize that most low-income residents have no time or inclination to visit our city's museums. So we're bringing art to them! The Publicolor community museum will involve discovering schools or community sites instead of going from room to room in a museum to enjoy works of art. A map, laying this out, is planned.

Testimonials

"Because of you, thousands of school children as well as all New Yorkers have more color in their lives and as a true believer in Publicolor, let me thank you!"

– Michael R. Bloomberg

108th Mayor of New York City

"I laud Publicolor for its strong commitments and dedication to serving the needs of students and their communities. By transforming public schools and community facilities into vibrant and welcoming centers for learning and productivity, you help create an environment in which effective teaching and learning are truly possible."

– Kirsten E. Gillibrand

US Senator for New York

"I heard that NY1 recently named you New Yorker of the week in recognition of your work with Publicolor – congratulations! What a wonderful testament to the important role the organization plays in transforming the city's schools, and the lives of the students who attend them."

– Bill Clinton

42nd President of the United States

"Our scores have soared due to an environment conducive to learning."

– Alan D. Cohen

Principal, The New Vision School, PS 69

"Publicolor makes a difference at so many different levels. Kids get desperately needed mentorship and opportunities. Teachers get improved working environments. Communities get revived public spaces. And volunteers get opportunities to contribute and make a difference. This is a special program that is making a difference."

– Adam S. Weinberg

Dean of the College, Colgate University

"The colors make our clients feel happy, warm, peaceful, and safe. Before, it felt like a shelter and there was beige everywhere. People described it as prison colors. It made them feel depressed. Now the shelter doesn't feel hopeless, it feels hopeful, like a new beginning. It's a fresh start. The colors we chose make the residents feel alive."

– Thavenis Ellis

Director of Social Services, LIFE Center

"Since Publicolor beautified the school, teachers have seen a positive change in the demeanor of students. Children comment constantly about the bright, cheery environment, and the fact that colors were chosen by students. The colorful school-wide change has improved the tone both in and out of the classrooms –our colorful school is a kid-friendly space!"

Publicolored Sites

Our model of revitalization starts with struggling underserved inner-city schools, but that's not where it stops. Once we finish a school, we extend our reach into the community, to local police precincts and neglected neighborhood facilities. At all sites we enlist volunteers, from parents to police to community site staff and beyond, so that all develop a new sense of belonging and pride in their community.

Since 1996, we've transformed Publicolor has transformed 344 struggling schools and 258 neglected community sites (health clinics, food pantries, shelters, community + senior centers, police precincts). These transformations have impacted 2.2 million people.

Every year, Publicolor Community Museum installations add visual beauty to the lives of approximately 20 million New Yorkers and visitors.

THE NEW YORK
LANDMARKS
CONSERVANCY

March 22, 2018

Ms. Ruth Lande Shuman
1120 Park Avenue
New York, New York, 10028

Dear Ms. Shuman:

The New York Landmarks Conservancy would like to honor you as one of our "Living Landmarks" at our November 1 fundraising gala at The Plaza. David Patrick Columbia, who was an honoree last year and will host this year's gala, highly recommended you.

The award honors distinguished New Yorkers who help "preserve" the City in their own special ways. Publicolor's outstanding work with at-risk students in underserved communities certainly deserves our recognition.

We have several honorees each year. Peter Marino, Dr. Peter Sculco, Liz and Jeffrey Peek and Stephen Lash have already agreed to be honored. "Living Landmarks" alumni Leonard Lauder and Arie Kopelman are the honorary co-chairs. This will be the 25th Living Landmarks celebration.

Other past honorees include Paul Binder and Michael Christensen, Agnes Gund, Robert Caro, Wynton Marsalis, John Rosenwald, Angela Lansbury, Frank Stella, Jan and Marisa Vilcek and Tom Wolfe.

We ask our honorees to take a lead table and be available for an interview prior to the gala for a tape we show that evening. The evening is a fun and lively celebration of the City we love and crucial to the Conservancy's efforts to preserve New York's iconic buildings and neighborhoods.

The Conservancy is a respected advocate for preservation at City Hall and in Albany and Washington. Our unique financial and technical programs have loaned and granted more than $50 million, helping hundreds of building owners restore their homes, businesses, religious and cultural institutions.

I am enclosing information about the Conservancy and last year's gala. We do hope you will join us.

Sincerely,

Peg Breen
President

Career

Ms. Shuman is an industrial designer, using design for social change.

In 1994 Ms. Shuman created a pilot program that led her to found Publicolor in 1996. Ms. Shuman has run Publicolor ever since, creating all of our programs.

From 1991–1994 Ms. Shuman served as an Assistant to Gaetano Pesce, the cutting-edge Italian architect and designer, on assignments in both Japan, Poland, and France.

From 1989–1991 Ms. Shuman coordinated the exhibition, Mondo Materialis and an accompanying award-winning book (published by Abrams) for Steelcase Design Partnership.

From 1966–1967 she was Program Director of Architectural League.

From 1965–1966 she helped set up for Mayor Lindsay’s Task Force on Urban Design.

Education

Ms. Shuman received her MS in Industrial Design at Pratt Institute in 1990, where she also completed a six-month post-graduate study on the psychological effects of color. She received her B.A. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1964, and continued graduate studies in art history at both the Institute of Fine Arts at NYU and Columbia University, where she focused on 20th-century architecture (1964-1965).

Service

Ms. Shuman has been committed to community-based work for over forty years, most notably as founding trustee of the Big Apple Circus, where she served as Trustee Emerita. For 17 consecutive years she chaired their annual Gala, which netted approximately $7.5 million and expanded their donor base enormously.

From 2005 until 2009 she was the Mayor’s representative to the board of the Museum of Art & Design in New York City.

From 1995 until 2001 she served on the board of the Mayor’s Voluntary Action Committee.

From 1993 until 2001 she served on the board of the Kitchen, the innovative non-profit, multi-disciplinary art and performance space, chairing their first fundraising benefit, which led to a 60% growth in new funders. From 1986–1991 she was a member of the Trustees’ Counsel of Pennsylvania Women.

Beginning in 1995-2005 she was a trustee of the Pratt Institute Rowena Reed Kostellow Fund.
